Working Hours at the Turn of the Year 2022/2023

The University's hours of operation will be reduced between Saturday, 24 December 2022 and Monday, 2 January 2023. Information about which services and facilities (libraries, study areas, cafeterias, etc.) will continue to be available during this time will be published on www.uzh.ch.

The relevant working hours provisions reflect the corresponding decisions of the Government Council of the Canton of Zurich¹, which apply to all employees employed until or beyond 31 December 2022.

For staff with an employment level of 100%, reduced operations will result in 33 hours and 36 minutes of lost work.

Total	33:36 h (of which one day paid leave, i.e.: 25:12 h)

In recognition of the extraordinary services provided during the coronavirus pandemic, UZH has decided to grant one working day (8:24 hours at a 100% employment level) of paid leave for this period. This means that a total of 25:12 hours of lost work is to be compensated over the turn of the year (at an employment level of 100%).

Employees who do not work during the time period mentioned above must compensate for this lost work by taking vacation time or using their positive working hours balance (the number of hours required for part-time employees is calculated in the same way but proportional to their usual working hours).

The principle by which employees must take vacation before being able to compensate for extra hours does not apply when it comes to compensating workdays at this turn of the year. Moreover, this compensation of extra hours will not count towards the maximum admissible 15 compensation days.

If an employee does not work on the aforementioned days, they may only record minus hours if they no longer have any overtime or vacation time available.

With regard to carrying over working hours, the general provisions of § 121 of the Implementation Ordinance of the Employment Act apply.²

As of 31 December 2022, a positive working hours balance of no more than 84 hours may be carried over to the following year. If more than 84 hours are to be carried over, the employee must obtain the approval from their next-higher line manager; please refer to the relevant overview, which has been in force since June 2019 (ULB 2019/298).

As of 31 December 2022, as an exception³ a negative working hours balance of no more than 109 hours and 12 minutes may be carried over to the following year. This figure is based on 84 minus hours plus a balance of 25 hours and 12 minutes required to compensate for lost work at the turn of the year (based on full-time employment).

These minus hours must be reduced to no more than 84 hours by 30 June 2023, which is half a year later than usual. Any balance of negative working hours that extends beyond 1 July 2023 must be compensated with overtime or vacation time. With this, the regular conditions according to § 121 para. 1 of the Implementation Ordinance of the Employment Act will be restored.

² A maximum of 84 hours of extra or minus hours can be carried over to the following year (based on full-time employment).

³ E.g. in cases of longer absences from work due to illness or accident

The process is shown in the following overview:

The employees' direct line managers are responsible for checking compliance with this exceptional regulation and must assess and approve cases individually.

In the event of illness or accident between 24 December 2022 and 2 January 2023, the relevant working hours can be compensated at a later time (in the amount of up to 25 hours and 12 minutes). This does not include absences due to illness or accident on the day of paid leave.

These compensation regulations do not apply to employees who do work between 24 December 2022 and 2 January 2023. Compensation at a later time is not possible. However, employees who do work during this time will be granted one working day, i.e. 8 hours and 24 minutes (based on full-time employment) of paid leave, which the heads of the organizational units will decide when it can be taken.

For information regarding taking and carrying over vacation balance, please refer to the relevant fact sheet on the vacation website.
